

Verdelho

2010 Easy-drinking, well-priced quaffer, aromatic tropical and citrus fruit flavours, a dash of spice, zippy acidity and a clean finish.

Kerry Skinner, Quench, February 2011

2010 First the name. This is a relatively new Margaret River label and they've gathered pockets of vines from all over the region. Now the wine. It hits the spot. It's lighter than a lot of verdelhos and has summer white "drinkability", with pineapple and tropical fruit flavours and a bone dry finish

2010 ...Franklin Tate who, along with young winemaker Jodie Opie, put together a great batch of good-value, regional wine with a modern look, plenty of zip and a definite aim to celebrate lively fruit character. Here, their verdelho leads with tropical blossom and fruits, limes and lemons squeezed over it.

Tony Love, Sunday Times, December 2010

2010 BARGAIN OF THE WEEK. A touch of spice among straw, nutty savoury aromas, turning lemony in the mouth. The palate is full and round with good fruit ripeness and generosity. It has more character and less sugar than most verdelhos. 86/100.
